About our pricing

Having spent many years buying and selling vintage goods, I have a pretty good idea about current retail value and what it takes to locate and purchase items. This information serves as the basis for pricing my rentals. My goal is to keep my fees lower than what it would cost a client to purchase similar items, yet I also recognize there's value in not having to go to the hassle of locating, hauling, and storing things as well.

Prices are subject to change based on availability and popularity, so please view the price ranges on the website as estimates and request a quote for exact figures.

Styling assistance prior to or on the day of the event, our usage fee, and delivery are added to the cost of the rentals. When requesting a quote, please provide as much detail about which of our services you'll need. We strongly recommend delivery and set-up for the bigger items as they can be difficult to transport and handle. It also saves you hassle and worry the day of. We work with each client and their venue to determine the best days and times for delivery and pick-up.

About our goods

By their very nature, vintage goods are in “used” condition. While I make every attempt to provide a quality product, goods shown are stained, chipped, cracked, worn, and less than perfect. That’s what makes them vintage! The items are shown in “as is where is” condition at the time this catalog was published.

Some items are pictured in a group because it’s simply too burdensome to list things individually. It is possible to request specific items that can be identified in individual pictures even though they may not be listed separately. Bottles, suitcases, and wooden crates are probably the best example of goods not pictured separately that can be rented specifically.

Anything rented from my inventory can be modified or used in anyway that allows for the item to be returned in the originally rented condition. Simply put, I don’t care what you do with it, put in it, how you hang it, display it, etc., as long as it’s returned to me in the same condition as it left.

I do my best to keep the catalog current, but it is possible that something pictured here is no longer available or already spoken for by someone else. I reserve the right to remove goods from the inventory as I see fit should they become damaged, unusable, or are deemed no longer desirable. I also am constantly adding to inventory. So, if what you desire is not pictured, please inquire.
